Open-rank, full-time faculty position available

Now accepting applications for a faculty position!

The Munroe-Meyer Institute’s Severe Behavior Department provides a unique range of services, including evaluations, outpatient and intensive outpatient therapy, and day treatment programs.

Ideal candidates will have a passion for supporting individuals who engage in aggression, property destruction, self-injury, and other unsafe behavior. Candidates will maintain an active caseload in which they work closely with clinical teams and caregivers to provide high-quality, behaviorally based programs. Candidates will have opportunities to coordinate and implement functional analyses and a variety of function-based interventions, focused treatments for severe behavior, caregiver training and consultation, and comprehensive care across the lifespan. Qualified candidates will have a record of excellence in clinical work and a strong commitment to mentoring students and staff.

Bring your passion – training provided.

- Strong applicants have a PhD in Psychology, Behavior Analysis, or a related field
- Candidates with a license in psychology or license eligible as a psychologist in the state of Nebraska are preferred.
- Candidates with a board certification in behavior analysis (BCBA-D) are preferred.
